7. New Findings of the Dissertation

First, the dissertation develops the central concept of the research topic: "The implementation of sustainable poverty reduction by the People's Committee of Khanh Hoa Province" is defined as the comprehensive activities undertaken by the organizational system, officials, and civil servants of the Provincial People's Committee, with the participation of organizations within the political system, relevant stakeholders, and the people of the province. These activities include disseminating and implementing the Party Committee's guidelines, tasks, and solutions on sustainable poverty reduction; formulating and promulgating projects, plans, and policy measures for poverty reduction; organizing implementation; and conducting inspection and supervision to achieve a stable and long-term reduction in the provincial poverty rate while effectively preventing poverty relapse and the emergence of new poor households in the face of socio-economic changes.

Second, the dissertation identifies several practical lessons from the implementation of sustainable poverty reduction by the People's Committee of Khanh Hoa Province. These include enhancing the awareness and responsibility of the entire political system toward sustainable poverty reduction; fostering the determination and self-reliance of poor households to escape poverty; and ensuring strict adherence to the leadership of the Provincial Party Committee and its Standing Committee, together with the direction and supervision exercised by the Provincial People's Council throughout the implementation process.

Third, the dissertation proposes a breakthrough solution to further improve the implementation of sustainable poverty reduction by the People's Committee of Khanh Hoa Province in the coming period. This solution emphasizes the importance of pilot implementation, selecting and developing exemplary sustainable poverty reduction models, conducting periodic reviews and evaluations, drawing practical lessons, and replicating successful models on a wider scale. At the same time, it aims to ensure the sustainability of poverty reduction outcomes by strengthening supporting conditions that enable poor households to escape poverty permanently and avoid falling back into poverty.
